Acknowledgement of Assistance

All manuscripts utilizing data made available through the ZENTRALARCHIV FUER EMPIRISCHE SOZIALFORSCHUNG should acknowledge that fact as well as identify the original collectors of the data.

We kindly ask all users to follow some adaptation of the following statement:

> The data utilized in this (publication) were documented and made available by the ZENTRALARCHIV FUER EMPIRISCHE SOZIALFORSCHUNG, Koe in. The data for the 'ISSP' were collected by independent institutions in each country (e.g. the Australian survey was conducted by the RSSS at the Australian National University (J. Kelley, M. Evans, C. Bean)). Neither the original collectors nor the ZENTRALARCHIV bear any responsibility for the analyses or interpretation presented here.

In order to provide funding agencies with essential information about the use of archival resources, and to facilitate the exchange of information about research activities based on the ZENTRALARCHIV's holdings, each user is expected to send two copies of each completed manuscript to the ZENTRALARCHIV.

An introduction to the ISSP

The International Social Survey Programme (ISSP) is a voluntary grouping of study teams in eleven nations (soon to become thirteen or fourteen), each of which undertakes to run a short, annual self-completion survey containing an agreed set of questions asked of a probability-based, nation-wide sample adults. The topics change from year to year by agreement, with a view to replication every five years or so.

The questions themselves are developed by subgroups and then thrashed out at an annual meeting attended by representatives of each national team. At the last meeting in May 1989, in London, there were 29 participants from the 11 national teams, including representatives of the ISSP's 'official' data archive, the Zentralarchiv at the University of Cologne.

A constitution of sorts has now been adopted by members of the ISSP. It contains, for instance, rules of entry for new members and responsibilities of membership. The primary duty of each member is, of course, to run every annual module (or at least nearly every one) in the agreed format. But there are no central funds for the ISSP: each national team covers the costs of its own piloting, fieldwork, data preparation, travel to meetings and so on. Since the ISSP has agreed to use one language for drafting and for meetings - (British) English there are no central translation costs.

Improbable as it may seem, this general formula has worked well so far. The annual questionnaires for instance (contrary to all advice and experience) have actually been designed for the most part in committee, and though inevitably flawed, are no less successful than most. Admittedly, this success owes a lot to careful prior development work by drafting groups and to subsequent adjustments after piloting. In any event, fascinating data are already beginning to emerge.

A fuller treatment than is given here, of the results generated so far by the series, is to be provided in the first ISSP Report, a book funded by the European Cultural Foundation and due to be published by the Netherlands Social and Cultural Planning Bureau (SCP) in 1990.

As may by now be apparent, the ISSP has grown and developed somewhat haphazardly, and this pattern shows every sign of continuing as long as it seems to work. The ISSP certainly came into without much serious planning, having emerged as a vague idea during an impromptu meeting the two of us in 1983 whose purpose was primarily to exchange experiences and explore opportunities for borrowing each other's questions.

At that stage, the British Social Attitudes Survey (BSAS) was still in its first year, but had just received news that it was to be given at least a four-year life span through the generosity of the Sainsbury Family Charitable Trusts. The US General Social Survey (GSS), in contrast, was some 12 years old and had already acted as something of a role-model for other national series, including the BSAS itself, the West German Allgemeine Bevoelkerungsumfrage der Sozialwissenschaften (ALLBUS) (started in 1980) and the Australian National Social Science Survey (NSSS) (which was about to take its first fieldwork round).

As is usual at such meetings, we were bemoaning the fact that survey questions are poor travellers, especially across national and cultural boundaries. The BSAS, for instance, despite intentions to the contrary, had managed to transplant only one or two questions directly from the GSS. The West German ALLBUS contained a few more replications as a result of a specific bilateral agreement with the GSS. But a long-standing problem for all national time-series of this sort was, and is, that the concern for a year-by-year comparability within a country is often conflict with a concern of comparability between countries. Since funding is almost from national sources, the choice both of topics and of question-wording tends to reflect national rather than cross-national priorities.

So the conclusion we reached in 1983 was that the ideal way of securing a greater element of cross-national comparability should probably be via a standardised bolt-on supplementary questionnaire designed specifically for that purpose. With this in mind, SCPR sought and obtained a small grant from the Nuffield Foundation for convening a meeting (and then another) between representatives of the other three national social attitudes surveys which we already had some contact - those in Australia, West Germany, and the USA. There, the idea of a bolt-on, mutually-designed series of supplementary questionnaires could be aired and, perhaps, taken further.

As it turned out, the idea was warmly received by all four groups, who also decided that these supplements should be in a self-completion format, primarily for reasons of cost and to avoid adding to the already long, personal interviews. At the following meeting, the first bolt-on module, on the role of government, was developed and scheduled for fielding in 1985. It was later translated into American English, Australian English and German to obtain functionally-equivalent rather than identical wordings.

Although we were not quite aware of it at the time, the ISSP had effectively started. Since then, several other modules have been designed and fielded, the membership has grown threefold, and the structure has become a bit more bureaucratic, but not (yet) unduly so.

Sample type

The ISSP 1988 was realized as a drop-off of the Allgemeine Bevoelkerungsumfrage der Sozialwissenschaften (ALLBUS). The method used was a self-completing supplement to the ALLBUS interview.
The sample type was a three-stage random:
The first stage consisted in the selection of sample-points, the second in the selection of households by the random-route method. At the third stage the interviewer had to select a person from the household with German nationality who was at least 18 years of age. The sample is representative for adult Germans, living in the Bundesrepublik or West-Berlin in private households during the fieldwork time.

Great Britain - GB

The questions for the ISSP ' 88 are part of the British Social Attitudes. This is the fifth in an annual series of surveys started by SCPR in 1983 and core-funded by the Sainsbury Family Charitable Trusts which ensure the stability and independence of the series. SCPR's British Social Attitudes series aims to monitor public attitudes to a wide variety of social, economic, political and moral issues during the 1980s and 1990s. Its primary source of data is an hour-long interview survey, with a self-completion supplement, among a probability sample of around 3000 people nationwide.

One of the modules in the British Social Attitudes dataset allows researchers to make cross-national comparisons. In 1984, the Nuffield Foundation gave funds to SCPR so that it could convene a series of meetings with research organisations in other countries carrying out general surveys of social attitudes. From these meetings, a group called the International Social Survey Programme (ISSP) has evolved. Each member undertakes to field annually an agreed self-completion questionnaire, and to abide by the ISSP working principles. Current members are named above. The module for 1988 is 'Family and Changing Sex Roles'. Direct international comparisons on this topic will now be possible.

The Sample

The survey was designed to yield a representative sample of adults aged 18 or over living in private households in Great Britain. The sample covers England, Wales and all but the highlands and islands of Scotland.

The sample was confined to those living in private households whose addresses were listed in the Electoral registers.
In fact, the same registers and the same constituencies, as those drawn for the 1986 BSA survey were used.

The sampling method involved a multi-stage design, with four separate stages of selection:
I. Selection of parliamentary constituencies

The stratification factors used in this survey were:

1. Registrar General's Standard Region,
2. Population density (persons per hectar): over 10,

5 - 10, under 5
3. A ranking by percentage of homes that were owner-occupied
II. Selection of polling destricts
III. Selection of addresses
IV. Selection of individuals.

United States - USA

The ISSP data are part of the General Social Survey (GSS) carried out by the National Opinion Research Center, University of Chicago (NORC). Principal investigators are Prof. James A. Davis and Prof. Tom W. Smith. The GSS data are collected in a cumulative codebook produced by NORC and distributed by The Roper Center for Public Opinion Research, University of Connecticut. The Project was supported by the National Science Foundation.

Sampling Design

The survey is an independently drawn sample of Englishspeaking persons 18 years of age or over, living in non-institutional arrangements within the United States. For the 1988 survey full probability sampling was employed.

The Primary Sampling Units (PSUs) employed are Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSAs) or non-metropolitan counties selected in NORC's Master Sample. These SMSAs and counties were stratified by region, age, and race for selection. The units of selection of the second stage were Block Groups (BGs) and Enumeration Districts (EDs). These EDs and BGs were stratified according to race and income before selection.
The third stage of selection was that of blocks. The blocks were selected with probabilities proportional to size. In places without block statistics, measures of size for the blocks were obtained by field counting.

Austria - A

The ISSP ' 87 and ISSP ' 88 were fielded simultanuously, each respondent had to answer both questionnaires.

This project was supported in part by promotion-funds from the Science Research Foundation, by grants from the government ministry for Science and Research and from the government Steiermark.

Fieldwork, Data collection

The field work was carried out by the IFES-Institut/ Vienna.

The Sample

The sample is a three stage stratified person random sample. The sample-points were selected according to the criteria of 'Bundesland' (region) and size of the place. Each sample point was assigned six households, using adresses drawn randomly from the national electoral register. Within the household the interviewer had to select the respondent among the household members between 16 and 69 years according to a fixed random number.

Fieldwork methods: Face to face interviews

Fieldwork dates: June - July 1988

Weighting

The weight is based on a sample of 1000 persons (IFES-weighting) The weighting factor corrects the sample on the three variables: Region, age, sex to a representative population sample according to the latest available population census (Mikrocensus 1987). Due to the sampling-procedure, in the unweighted dataset the oldest age-cohorts (over 60 years) and females are overrepresented. Sample size for the weighted dataset is trimmed to exactly 1000 interviews.

The Sample

The original sample consisted of 1965 persons. They were selected by cluster sampling. The first step was to select the communities and to determine the number of persons to be asked in each settlement. This first step was made in a way so as to obtain a sample which displays the same means and standard deviations on a number of variables concerning to the social, demographic, economic, and geographic characteristics of the communities were taken from the 1980 census. At second step random samples were taken from the adult population of each selected community. The list of persons (and their addresses) were provided by the Population Register Bureau.

Explanations

\(<1>\) A variable (and reference) number have been assigned to each item in the study. In the present codebook which documents the archived data set, these numbers are identical. Should the data set be subsetted or rearranged the variable numbers might change to reflect the order of the new data set while the reference numbers would remain unchanged to provide a link to the archived data set.
<2> Indicates the abbreviated ( 24 character maximum) variable label used within OSIRIS or SPSS system files.
<3> "Location" indicates the starting position of the variable when the dataset is stored in the OSIRIS format. "Width" describes the number of positions of the variable.
<4> "MD" indicates the designation of the missing data. MD1 indicates an explicit defined single value. MD2 designates a single value or a value range, i.e. all values equal or greater than this value have been declared missing.
        Although these categories are defined as missing data categories, this does not mean that the user should not or cannot use these codes if so desired.
<5> If a variable contains implied decimals, the message
        "Dec.places: \(x x^{\prime \prime}\) appears here, where \(x x\) is the number of decimal places.
<6> Indicates the full question text taken from the British questionnaire. Wherever possible the original sequence of questions has been retained, although some changes were necessary to integrate the different national questionnaires.
\(<7>\) Indicates commentaries and explanations added during the processing of the study. < > within question or answer texts may indicate whether the questionnaire in a particular country is deviating from the general format.
    <8> Indicates the code value for the single answer category.
<9> Indicates the textual definition of the codes.
    Abbreviations commonly used are DK (don't know), NA (no answer), Can't choose, Not applicable and Not available.
<10> Indicates percentaged frequencies by country. This form is used whenever code categories have the same meaning for all countries. Column percentages are based only on "valid cases". Missing data values were excluded from percentages.

Note 0004

Size and Type of the Place of Residence

This note refers to V108 and contains specific explanations about the size and type of the place of residence.

West Germany

Instead of the political administrative units, which describe only incomplete the type of community where the respondent lives, the classification of the size of communities (from Boustedt) is used. Independent of the political administrative units, the real type of settlement in the surrounding place of residence is decisive for the classification.

07 A small city (10.000 to 49.999)
08 A town or village (2.500 to 9.999)
09 An incorporated area less than 2.500 or an unincorporated area of 1.000 to 2.499 (c)
10 Open country within larger civil divisions, e.g. township, division

Note 0004

Remarks:

(a) A suburb is defined as any incorporated area or unincorporated area of $1.000+$ (or listed as such in the U.S. Census PC (1)-A books) within the boundaries of an SMSA but not within the limits of a central city of the SMSA. Some SMSAs have more than one central city, e.g., Minneapolis-St. Paul. In these cases, both cities are coded as central cities.
(b) If such an instance were to arise, a city of 50.000 or over which is not part of an SMSA would be coded ,07’.
(c) Unincorporated areas of over 2.499 are treated as incorporated areas of the same size. Unincorporated areas under 1.000 are not 1 isted by the Census and are treated here as part of the next larger civil division, usually the township.

Informations about the Demographic Variables

This Note refers to the demographic variables V67 to V148 and contains country specific deviations from the ISSP standard question text and deductions from the original country specific variables. Paraphrases ( ) contain the utilized codes in the codebook.

West Germany (ALLBUS 1988)

V65 There are two variables about sex - in the ALLBUS questionnaire and in the ISSP drop-off. Between both there are deviations. We have decided to integrate the data from the face-to-face interviews of the ALLBUS main survey instead of the data from the ISSP self-completed questionnaire. In all other countries the variables 'sex' and 'age' are also part of the main survey and not part of the ISSP.

V66 'Age' was computed from birthmonth and birthyear. The data are recoded only for presentation in the codebook. The dataset contains the varibale unchanged.
18. 18 years
$\dot{9} \dot{4}$. 94 years
There are two variables about age - in the ALLBUS questionnaire and in the ISSP drop-off. Between both there are differences in 498 cases. We have taken the data from the face-to-face interviews of the ALLBUS main survey and not from the ISSP self-completed questionnaire because of invalid and incorrect statements. These deviations can be explained by the fact, that R's birthday was between answering the two questionnaires.

V83 Deducted from the following codes (from V84):
The deduction of "left-right" from V84 is only to give an approximate classification of the political parties and should be used cautiously: There is a left-right continuum within the large parties (SPOe, OeVP, FPOe), and additionally a change over time has taken place: e.g. the 1 iberal party (FPOe) has shifted towards the right in the last years.

\section*{V67 Marital status}

The data from this variable are considered as valid and therefore basis for the 'Not applicable'-Codes of some questions in the drop-off (V55 to V64).

In the construction of the variable concerning marital status, the group of married couples (Code 1) covers according to our interpretation - those who are legally married and declared themselves presently cohabiting and also those singles who live with their common law spouses; furthermore people who are separated, but not legally divorced, but live with common lay spouses; divorced and widowed persons who are cohabiting with a partner of the other sex.
The other codes according to the sense are the following: single living widowed persons (Code 2), single living divorced persons (Code 3), married but separated people (Code 4) and singles without any cohabiting partner (Code 5).

V69, The number of completed school grades, independently, V95, of whether it means completed schooling or not. If the V109, respondent completed more than one school of the same V112 type (e.g. two universities), both are included.
Up to 7 years: incomplete primary
8 years : complete compulsory school
11 years: complete compulsory school and skilled workers' training school
12 years: completed secondary school
More than 12 : university

V70, V96
(1) Includes those who did not attend any type of school.
(2) Includes those who have attended maximum 7 grades.
(3) Completed compulsory 8 grade primary school, and those who did not complete their secondary school studies.
(4) After the 8 grade primary school a skilled worker's certificate can be aquired in two or three years. This category contains those respondents who aquired a qualification in this way in the skilled workers' training school.
(5) Both types of secondary schools, which are completed with matriculation: vocational secondary school and grammar school (gymnasium), four grades after the general school. Those with such qualification are included in this category as well as those who interrupted their high level education.
(7) Graduates of high level institutes: high school college or university.

V71 Current employment status: Respondent
(05) During the survey, there was practically no unemployment in Hungary, therefore this category is missing.
(01) This code partly contains the family members of those engaged in agricultural cooperatives, who help, on an average of less than eight hours daily, other members of the family who are full-time engaged in agricultural activities. This code also contains family members of private farmers, artisans and small tradesmen, who help part-time. In addition to the status of part-time helping family-member - part-time employment (4 or 6 hours daily) also exists in Hungary, but the related question was not included in our questionnaire.
(01) Active earners (not helping family members)
(08) Contains women who are regularly employed, but at present are staying with their small children on maternity leave or receive maternity nursing grant. (Maternity nursing grant can be received by every working mother up to the age of 1 of their child, the sum of this is 75 per cent of the income of the mother before the birth of the baby. Child benefit can be received by the mother up to the age of 3 of her child, the sum of 1.000 .- forint.) This code also contains retired persons (with old age pension, disablement or widow's pensions), other inactive persons, dependents (students, etc.) and housewives.

V73 The variable contains the four-digit categories of the International Standard Classification of 0ccupations (ISCO). See note 1 .

For those, who have no mention at the present occupation the last occupation is coded.
13005. is recoded to (999998) not classifiable

Note 0006
V76 Code 2 contains craftsmen working in their own workshop, tradesmen with shop, farmers cultivating there own land, intellectual free-lancers and their part-time helping family members; all other active earners can be found in Code 1.

V77 In the case of self employment in the private sector (craftsmen, tradesmen, farmers or intellectual freelance) the paid employee does not equal the helping family member appearing in the code 1 of the variable current employment status (V71), because the latter is not paid a salary.

V78 Code 1 of the variable includes those who supervise other/s even if they only have one subordinate. Those who have no subordinates are in Code 2 and the nonactive earners (pensioners, dependents or persons on childcare leave) are in Code 0 . Those who are in the private sector in V77 and have paid subordinates are also included in Code 1.
\(V 91\) Religion
The question referred to the religion in which the respondents was baptised or registered. The Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, Lutheran, and Jewish are not aggregated categories.
\(V 94\) (1) Those who live in their own apartment or house, or are members of the owner's family.
(2) Who live in state owned apartments or houses, or them from other owners (e.g., private person), or are members of the renter's family.
(3) Who are living in some institution, (e.g. workers, hostel, nursing home or old people's home).
(4) Lodgers, bed renters
(5) Others
\(V 97\) (01) Whose spouse is an active earner
(08) Housewives, temporarily non-working mothers on child care grant, pensioners

V103 Wages and salary pension, benefits from the second economy (e.g. byline, household, plot, rental of real estate, etc.) social benefits (family allowance, child care grant, scholarship, etc.)

V104 Classified variable, derived from V103

V105 We added to the monthly earning - which includes from the job, thus also monthly overtime earning income derived from household plot production, bylines, typs, gratuities and bonuses. The code (0) indicates the group of those who do not carry out earning activity.

V106 Classified variable, derived from V105

V107 The variable distinguishes 19 major administrative units counties of Hungary plus Budapest, the capital (Code 1).
\(V 108\) (1): Residents of Budapest and the 5 major towns of the country (Miskolc, Szeged, Debrecen, Pecs and Gyor).
(2): Residents of all of the other minor towns
(3): Residents of large and small villages

V111 The 4 digit ISCO category of the father's occupation. The question referred to the respondent's 14 years of age. In the case of those fathers who no longer worked at that time their last occupation was indicated.
(0): fathers who never worked or about whom the respondent could not provide information.

V69,V95 Years of schooling: Respondent/ spouse/ partner
V70, V96 Education in categories: Respondent/ spouse/ partner
As to the number of years of schooling necessary for each of the seven categories, the following remark is in order.
Primary education starts at the age of four and takes eight years.
Extended education takes four years.
Secondary education takes five or six years.
All kinds of vocational training and the university take on the whole about four years.

There are, however, many exceptions of this rule of thumb. Until recently 'Kindergarden' was not integrated in primary education and formal education started at six. A better way of tackling this problem is perhaps to use a crossing between 'education in categories' and 'education in years'. The ' 87 data show the following results:
