ASK QB IN EU27

We are now going to ask you some questions about undeclared work or about black market goods or services. Please remember, as we told you at the beginning, that this is genuine market research, conducted by scrupulously chosen, renowned market research institutes across Europe. The research is being conducted under a scientific research methodology and within very strict ESOMAR (that is, the European Marketing and Social Research Code of Conduct) guidelines. All your answers will remain completely anonymous and confidential and can only be analysed globally – never at an individual level, so please bear this in mind and answer these next questions as honestly as you can.

It is clear that part of the population is engaged in undeclared work, by this we mean activities that are not declared to the tax or social security authorities, but which are otherwise legal. Payment may be in money or in kind. This could involve people working in certain sectors like construction, transport or agriculture for example but also in hotels, restaurants and cafes. Undeclared work or income is also common across a whole range of household services - such as gardening, babysitting and elderly care, - personal services - like hairdressing, cosmetic or medical treatment - and repair services for cars, clothes, or computers.

QB1 Approximately, what percentage of the UK population do you think works without declaring income or part of their income to tax or social security authorities?

It is clear that part of the population to some extent accepts the existence of "undeclared work" – i.e. activities which are not declared to tax authorities or social security authorities, and where the person who acquires the goods or service is aware of this. Usually both parties – the provider and the recipient – benefit from this, mainly since they do not pay VAT, income tax or social security contributions.
