They are the method by which America seeks to dominate the world. Through their power they're able to limit the freedom of action of governments and weaken the independence of individual countries.

By operating the same kind of systems and producing the same kind of products in different countries, they tend to destroy differences in ways of living. By establishing themselves in underdeveloped countries so as to have cheap labour, they threaten employment in the advanced European countries.

They take out more in the way of profits from underdeveloped countries than they put back in money or other ways. They are able to minimise the effect of strikes in one factory by switching their production to another.

248. I would like you to think about multinational companies operating in Britain and compare them with truly British companies. In your opinion, for the same type of things that you might buy which type of company - the multinational or the British one offers their products at a more advantageous price?

Offers products that are of better quality?

Offers better paid jobs?

Offers more secure employment to its staff?

Have greater respect for people who work for them?

249. Among the different proposals on this card, which one do you think would have the best chance of success in limiting the power of multinational firms?

1. The government of every country should bring in extra control methods of checking the activities of multinational firms.

2. The trade unions should increase their collaboration activities at the international level.

3. The Common Market countries, working in co-operation, should set up a bureau to regulate the activities of multinational firms.

4. The different categories of employees should be represented on the board of multinational firms.

5. The United Nations should set up some method of regulation and control at international level.
