GLES 2013
Rolling Cross-Section Campaign Survey with Post-election Panel Panel Wave
ZA5703, Version 2.0.2

Documentation of Questionnaire
The German Longitudinal Election Study (GLES) is a long-term project funded by the German Research Foundation (Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft) which started with the 2009 federal election and is continued with the federal election 2013. GLES is the largest and most ambitious election study held so far in Germany.

GLES 2013 was directed by five principal investigators: Prof. Dr. Hans Rattinger (University of Mannheim), Prof. Dr. Sigrid Roßteutscher (University of Frankfurt), Prof. Dr. Rüdiger Schmitt-Beck (University of Mannheim) Prof. Dr. Bernhard Weßels (Social Science Research Center Berlin) and Prof. Dr. Christof Wolf (GESIS – Leibniz Institute for the Social Sciences) in close cooperation with the German Society for Electoral Studies (Deutsche Gesellschaft für Wahlforschung).

The following documentation refers to the Rolling Cross-Section Campaign Survey with Post-election Panel Wave (ZA5703) of the GLES 2013 and will give you some general information about the dataset.

Basic information
Funding Agency German Research Foundation (Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft)
Data Collector Ipsos, Hamburg
Date of collection 07/08/2013 – 09/21/2013 (pre-election)
09/23/2013 – 11/03/2013 (post-election)
Content The RCS design (telephone sample) allows the analysis of election campaign dynamics on a daily basis so that short-term effects become visible.

Methodology
Geographic Coverage Germany (DE)
Universe The population comprises all German-speaking people, whose residence is in the Federal Republic of Germany and who are eligible to vote in the federal election 2013 as well as living in private households with a landline.
Selection Method Multistage random sampling based on the ADM-design (Gabler-Haeder-model for telephone samples). The pre-election wave is a Rolling Cross-Section (RCS) survey with the aim to realize 100 interviews per day based on random sampling. These daily interviews were conducted in such a way that not only the entire sample, but also the interviews collected on each day constitute random samples from the universe of German citizens aged 18 and above. Besides, the sample is stratified by region. Due to the complicated sampling design of RCS surveys interviews collected on the first days do not yet constitute proper random samples. The target person in the household was determined by last-birthday-method.
Mode of Data Collection Computer Assisted Telephone Interview (CATI), with an average duration of approximately 30 minutes (pre-election) and 21 minutes (post-election).
Field Work

A random sample of 7,882 voters was interviewed over a period of 76 days before the election, with an average of about 100 interviews conducted on each day of the period of observation. The post-election panel wave started directly after the Bundetag election and ended at the 11/03/2013.

Response Rate

7,882 people were surveyed in the pre-election wave. Thus, the response rate concerning the pre-election wave is 15.8 percent. 5,353 or 67.9 percent of them also participated in the post-election wave.

Weights

This study comprises transformation weights and post-stratification weights (also known as population or calibration weights) which are calculated on the respondents of the RCS pre-election wave. Due to the RCS design there are total, weekly and where possible also daily weights.

Transformation weights (wei_tran) are included in the dataset because the design of the study was based on landline numbers. They were calculated by dividing the number of all people who are eligible to vote in the household with the number of telephone extensions in the household. Afterwards the weight factors were standardized resulting in a mean of 1. The transformation weight enables us to transform the data into a personal sample.

The post-stratification weights namely “education weights”, “sociodemographic weights” and “sociodemographic and regional weights” with (and without) transformation weight create the second type of weights provided in the dataset. Those weights were calculated by the iterative proportional fitting (IPF) procedure. The iteration process ends when the difference between the weighted marginal distribution and the aimed distribution becomes smaller than 0.0001. To prevent large weights, the weights were trimmed (after each iteration) so that no weight is more than 5 times larger than the average weight. The weights are constructed on the basis of gender, age (four groups: 18 to 29, 30 to 44, 45 to 59 and 60 years and older), education (three groups: low, middle, high), BIK-regions (three groups) and East (incl. Berlin) / West German federal states. Missing cases are replaced with the mode.

To adjust for drop-out in the post-election panel component of the RCS panel weights were added. These weights were calculated by employing propensity score weighting. Therefore, attrition was estimated using a logistic regression model. Based on the results of the regression, individual participation probabilities were predicted. The inverse of the participation probability was used as a weighting factor.

Data access

Usage regulations

Data and documents are released for academic research and teaching: access category A.

Anonymized data

According to German data protection laws, only anonymized data can be made accessible for public download. Based on this, some variables had to be deleted from the publicly available dataset. As a matter of course no information is lost: All variables can be used by interested researchers in a Secure Data Center (SDC) at GESIS (Cologne, Mannheim). Some variables are also available by signing a user contract. If you are interested in those variables please send an e-mail to gles@gesis.org. An overview of those variables can be found on our homepage (www.gesis.org/gles).

Errata

The most recent errata list is provided by the GESIS Data Catalogue (www.gesis.org/dbk). There you can also find a list of all changes made between the different versions of the dataset.
Further Remarks
A Rolling Cross-Section Campaign Survey with Post-election Panel Wave was also conducted in 2005 (ZA4991) and within the GLES in 2009 (ZA5303).

You can find more information about GLES at www.gesis.org/gles and www.gles.eu.

To get an overview of the use of our data, we kindly request users of GLES-data to inform us about publications that utilize those data. In case of limited access to your publication (e.g. conference papers), we would highly appreciate if you could send us an electronic (PDF file, gles@gesis.org) or a print copy of your publication.

As a public service to the international academic community, we provide English translations of GLES datasets, questionnaires, and related important documents. Due to specifics of the original documents in German and the fact that translations were not done by political scientists, the wording of established social and political science questions and constructs in these translations may occasionally deviate somewhat from the Standard English versions. If you have any questions concerning the translations, do not hesitate to contact the principal investigators or their collaborators. Scalometer, coalitions

Now, let’s look at a question concerning the possible composition of the federal government after the next federal election. Imagine a thermometer which only measures from +5 to –5 with a zero point in the middle. Now using the thermometer, tell me what you think about the following coalitions – regardless of how likely the respective coalition is in your opinion. +5 means that you would find the coalition a very desirable outcome; –5 means that you would not find this coalition a desirable outcome at all. Use the values in between to express your opinion more precisely. If you are not sure about a coalition, you do not have to rate it of course.

[A INT: If respondent asks for details. Read out the explanation of the thermometer again.]

A How desirable would you find a black-yellow coalition of the CDU/CSU and FDP?
B And what about a red-green coalition of the SPD and Die Grünen?
C And a grand coalition of the CDU/CSU and SPD?
D And a black-green of the CDU/CSU and Die Grünen?
E And a "traffic-light" coalition of the SPD, FDP and Die Grünen?

Perception of coalition signals

Coalitions can only be formed if the corresponding political parties are willing to form them. Regardless of the actual majorities after the federal election, how likely do you think it is that the following political parties would be willing to join a coalition with each other after the federal election?

A Do you think it is absolutely certain, fairly certain, neither certain nor improbable, fairly uncertain or completely improbable that CDU/CSU and FPD would be willing to form a coalition together?
B And what about the SPD and Die Grünen?
C And the CDU/CSU and SPD?
D And the CDU/CSU, and Die Grünen?

Now, let us shift attention to several political issues. Some people prefer lower taxes, although this results in less social services. Others prefer more social services, although this results in raising taxes. What do you think are the positions of the political parties on this issue? Please tell me by using a scale from 1 to 11. 1 means that the party prefers to cut taxes and spend less on social services, and 11 means that the party prefers to raise taxes and spend more. Use the values in between to express your opinion more precisely.

A  In your view, what is the position of the CDU?
B  And what is the position of the CSU?

Our last interview question is also a request. This survey you have just participated in is being carried out under the scientific direction of the University of Mannheim. The study will be continued after the federal election. We would like to do a further interview with you then and keep your telephone number for this purpose. May we contact you again then?

(1) Yes
(2) No, definitely not

Record of identifying details

[FILTER: If willingness to take part again (pre126) = Yes (1)]

Would you please tell me your first name or the first letter of your first name and the first letter of your last name?
[INT: If respondent wants to know details:] We need this information to be sure that we are actually talking to you when we contact you again.

Post-election

(09/23/2013 – 11/03/2013)
Good day, my name is [PROG: Name of Interviewer] from Ipsos, one of the major polling organisations in Germany. Some time ago, we have conducted an interview with someone in your household, on behalf of the University of Mannheim. I would like to ask this person for a second interview. Thus, I would like to speak to the person

- whose first name is [PROG: insert first name]
- whose initials are [PROG: insert initials]
- who is [PROG: male/female] and [PROG: insert age] years old.

[if you are already talking to target person:] May we ask you to take part in the interview?

(1) yes  [START INTERVIEW]
(2) no   [IF RESPONDENT DOESN'T WANT TO PARTICIPATE, TRY TO CONVINCE HIM/HER BY ALL MEANS!]

[if you are talking to contact person:] Would you please get this person on the phone?

[IF CONTACT PERSON HAS ANY QUESTIONS:] We are currently conducting a scientific survey about the federal election on behalf of the University of Mannheim. This person has already participated in a survey in this study some time ago and agreed to participate in the post election survey, too.

[IF RESPONDENT HAS ANY QUESTIONS:] We are currently conducting a scientific survey about the federal election on behalf of the University of Mannheim. Some time ago, you have agreed to participate in the post election survey, too. That's what I would like you to do now. We would be very grateful if you participated again. Your participation is of great importance for the success of this scientific study. This interview won't take as long as the first one, it takes about 15 minutes. (There won't be another interview.) The participation in the interview is voluntary. All your answers will be handled anonymously, viz. we won't connect your answers to your name or address. The study is obliged to adhere to the Data Protection Act. It is absolutely certain that your data will not be linked to your person. Are you willing to participate in the study?
